Sources say that a weird family named the Bundrens stopped in the middle of a busy public street late yesterday afternoon. Hailing from Yoknapatawpha County, witnesses say they could smell something rotten and dead coming from the inside of the wagon they were riding in. Six of them in all, a girl from the wagon stopped in the drug store and met with Mr. Moseley. We spoke with him for more.

"She said she was pregnant with an illegitimate child. She had come into my drug store looking for an abortion, and that her lover named Lafe had told her she could get an abortion here for ten dollars. I told her it was absolutely ridiculous, and she became very depressed and left the store after that."

While this girl was in the drugstore another of the family was in good old Barney Grummet's store trying to buy cement to make a cast for his brother's broken leg. We're not sure how this would work, but Mr. Grummet wanted him out of his store.

Once she returned to the wagon, the family left town after being threatened with jail time for disturbing the public. We will always have to wonder why they came, what they are doing in Jefferson, what was actually in their wagon, and why?
